Commercial Wind Loss Training Tips

What is this training about?

This training:

- Examines how commercial building components perform when exposed to wind
- Provides research-based risk reduction strategies
- Includes downloadable resources you can use for your staff and policyholders

The full course consists of 5 engaging modules with interactive quizzes. Participants will receive a certificate of completion once all 5 modules are complete.

What will I learn?

- The basics of what you need to know about each system
- The impact wind can have on that system
- The result of that system's failure on the building overall
- What to look for when determining a building's exposure to wind
- What you and the policyholder can do to help construct, retrofit, and maintain a more resilient building

Why should I take the training?

This training will enable you to better identify, evaluate, and understand how commercial building components perform when exposed to wind. If you have a better understanding of the impact that high winds can have on a building, you can provide more accurate assessments and guidance on research-based mitigation strategies, thereby reducing the risk.

Who will benefit from this training?

This set of training courses is geared toward IBHS members-only insurance industry professionals looking to expand their knowledge base on commercial wind loss and mitigation. This includes commercial lines loss/risk control teams, underwriters, product management, claims, and any other professional at our member companies who are interested in this topic.

How long does this training take?

2.5 hours (approximately 25–30 minutes per module). You can return to the training later if you don't finish it at once. We recommend completing it within a week.

Is there a test at the end?

There is NOT a formal test at the end. There are interactive quizzes throughout the course to make it engaging and to help with retaining the content.

What do I receive when I'm done?

IBHS Online Learning provides a Certificate of Completion, which includes your name, company name, name of course, and number of hours of completion.

How can I apply what I learn in the course?

Understanding the material provided in the training is the first step to risk reduction. The next step is to incorporate the training into your company's operations. Follow up with your teams to review what was learned, what next steps you might take, and the benefits of incorporating this information into your company's standard operating procedures.
